VEGETABLE EXHIBITS

Rules for vegetables are not as well defined as for fruits. The judge will place them on uniformity, trueness to type, freedom from blemishes and defects and on edible qualities. Harvest vegetables as close to fair time as possible and keep them in a cool moist place until they are placed on exhibit. Leave about (1) inch of tops on root crop vegetables such as turnips, beets, carrots, and parsnips.

Here are some pointers for different kinds of vegetables:

BEETS: You may have (2) classes - those for immediate use (baby beets), not over 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 inches in diameter. At most fairs, there is only (1) class and that includes both groups. Dark red beets are preferred. The judge likes to see smooth beets with a small, clean tap root.

TOMATOES: Good commercial size. Stems are generally removed. Fruits should be red and firm, free of cracks and other defects. The blossom scar should be small. If there is a class for green tomatoes, choose those that are green and not partially ripened.

SWEET CORN: Should be average size, without worm damage, straight and filled to the ends, and husked. The corn should be at edible stage with kernels tender and juicy.

EGGPLANT: Dark color is preferred, a uniform purple color free from bronzing and greening is best. Exhibit marketable size eggplant, clean, solid, and free from disease and insect damage. Wilted or soft eggplants indicate poor quality.

TURNIPS: Smooth and of average size. Wash and do not cut off the tip or tail.

CARROTS: Usually there are two classes of carrots - baby carrots, not over (1) inch in diameter and tall carrots mature enough for winter storage. - (1 to 2) inches in diameter, depending on the variety. Carrots over (2) inches in diameter are generally classed as storage carrots. Greening at the top of the carrot detracts. Select carrots that are straight and smooth, without forked tails. Do not exhibit oversize or coarse specimens and do not trim off tap roots. Many varieties will be exhibited. Regardless of variety, the judge will pick the best plate.

PARSNIPS: The roots should be smooth, firm, tapering evenly, with no side roots. A light creamy skin color is preferred. Small to medium sized roots are desired. Do not exhibit soft shriveled roots.

SWISS CHARD: Select medium to large, fresh, crisp, bright green leaves, and clear white stems.

CANTALOUPE: Stems should be removed (be at full slip). Entries should be true to variety and uniformly covered with a good net. Good commercial size preferred. Make sure entries are free of soft spots, discoloration, and mechanical injuries.

CUCUMBERS: Should be cut off the vine, leaving 1/2 inch of stem. Select sweet pickles - 1 to 3 inches long; dill pickles - 3 to 5 inches long; slicing - 5 inches and above. Cucumbers should be straight, crisp, and uniform in size and color. Solid green specimens are often preferred. Do not exhibit overripe cucumbers. They are generally yellow or dull in color.

SQUASH & PUMPKINS: Leave 1 to 2 inches of stem on the fruit. A ripe winter squash shell is too hard to be pierced by the fingernail. Select an average size. Normally there are special classes for the largest squash, pumpkin, or watermelon, judged by weight. If the class is for the largest squash, enter a squash; if a pumpkin, enter a pumpkin. A pumpkin has a hard, ridged, angular stem, and a squash has a smooth, soft, round fleshy stem.

SUMMER SQUASH: Skin must be tender enough to be punctured by the fingernail. If you look in the stores, you will note Crooknecks, Straight necks, and scallops are sold when young and tender, while the seed cavity is solid, and seeds are not yet noticeable. If larger specimens are exhibited, make sure the outer skin can still be punctured by the fingernail. Scallops are right at (3) inches in diameter. Crooknecks when about 4 to 5 inches long. Zucchini squash when about 6 to 8 inches long.

WATERMELON: Leave about (1) inch of stem. Watermelons that weigh about (20) pounds usually win the prize where only large melons are exhibited. Do not be afraid to exhibit the smaller varieties such as New Hampshire midget. The judge will give them consideration. Smaller varieties should be in a separate class.

PEPPERS: Pick a uniform plate. Solid green specimens are best. They should be smooth. If the "hot" varieties are included, the judge will disregard the solid green color because some will be red. Some of the sweet ones will be red too.

CABBAGE: Should be solid, of average size and smooth. Only the outer set of leaves should be removed. Leave on at least (2) nice wrapper leaves. The wrapper leaves have some curl on the outside. If the wrapper leaves are taken off, you have a smooth head that is not attractive. Cut stem and leaf bases squarely and neatly.

CAULIFLOWER: Stem should be cut off neatly. A few protective leaves should be left extending about 2 to 3 inches above the curd. A good clear white color is preferred, and no leaves should be mixed with the curd. A small to medium type head is generally preferred.

RHUBARB: Pull rhubarb, do not cut. It must be fresh, firm, and crisp with fairly thick stalks. Leave a small portion of the leaf to prevent bleeding and for a better appearance.

KOHLRABI: Remove roots just below the ball and leave about (6) leaf petioles about (2) inches long. Some tiny leaves may be left in the center. Kohlrabi should be tender enough to be easily punctured by the thumbnail. A diameter of 2 to 3 inches is a good size. Specimens should not be hard, woody, or pithy.

POD CROPS: Peas, beans, and okra should be displayed with short stems. Peas should have bloom on pods and should be fresh, long, uniform, and filled with tender sweet peas. Do not exhibit flat, wilted, discolored pods. Beans should be tender, straight, and full. They must have good color, and all be at the same stage of maturity. Snap beans should never be called "string beans" on the premium list because there are excellent varieties that are string less. End should not be broken off in picking.

FRUIT EXHIBITS

Please follow guidelines set forth in the fair book. If the premium books say 3-fruits, it means THREE. So do not enter two or four.

APPLES: Apples are usually listed by variety and three (3) apples constitute an exhibit. Leave the stems one because the hole left by the stem makes an entrance for rot. Don't exhibit fruit with worm holes, hail marks, scale, scab, or other injury or defect. The fruit must be in perfect condition, as condition constitutes thirty percent of the score. Exhibit fruit of commercial size, not necessarily the largest. Apples must be uniform in size, shape, and color. Be sure the apples on the plate are all the same variety. Form must be typical of the variety. Polish the apples if rules of the fair permit. Before exhibiting, talk to your grocer. He can tell you the kind of apples the consumer wants, and this is the judge's basis for judging - consumer preference. Below is the type of score card generally used by the judge. An experienced judge does not write out his scores but goes through the process mentally. Often classes are close, requiring minor points to place the prize.

SCORE CARD:

Form: (typical for the variety) ----- 10 points
Size: (most acceptable/commercial size)
----- 15 points
Color: (red for red varieties) ----- 20 points
Uniformity: ----- 25 points
Condition: (free of worm holes, bruises, breaks, scabs, etc.) ----- 30 points

PEARS: Pears are judged much the same as apples. Be sure to leave the stem on.

PEACHES: You need not leave the stem on peaches. Don't exhibit peaches that have split pits, because the hole near the stem usually goes into the pit and increases the danger of rot.

GRAPES: Grapes are judged for compactness of bunch in addition to other points. They should have the bloom left on and be larger than average.

PLUMS AND CHERRIES:

Plums and cherries should have stems on. Do not polish the bloom off prunes and plums. It does not improve their appearance, but it does show their defects. The judge will watch for splits near the stem.

BERRIES: Berries are harder to exhibit. Strawberries should have stems on them and look bright and fresh. Raspberries are hard to handle without bruising. Look them over carefully to be sure they are perfect. In exhibiting small fruits, remember the judge usually goes to the bottom of things. Do not think that you can get by with just the good ones on top.
